

How to store your ladder for a longer life shelf?

Where should I store my ladder?

Find a place to store the ladder that will keep it out of harm's way. It could be a garage, shed, storeroom, or warehouse - the ideal ladder storage spot is in a large and spacious to accommodate its full length and secluded to avoid people from passing through and bumping into it.

Can I store my ladder outside?

While some materials such as; fiberglass is weather-resistant, we do not recommend storing any ladder outside for long periods of time. Keeping a ladder in an outdoor environment can lead to unwanted issues such as:

- Rust and degradation
- Damaged plastic fittings
- Rot (ladder that is made of wood)
- Corrosion of ropes
- Theft or unauthorized use of your ladder

The best way to store your ladder is in a place with suitable ventilation that will not be exposed to dampness.

Still unsure if your ladder is stored safely?

If you do not have the time to set up an entirely new ladder storage space, you may refer to the simple questions below before packing your ladder away for the day:

- Are you leaving your ladder somewhere dry?
- Is the ladder protected from the weather?
- Is the ladder clean and free of debris?
- Could the ladder fall over, cause accidents, or otherwise pose a safety risk? (If so, move it!)
